

Dr. Tassos Vassilopoulos

Dr. Tassos Vassilopoulos today is leading as Director the Information Technology, Quality and Environmental Protection department for DHL Express Greece and Cyprus, since 2002

He is responsible to shape the business programmes, in order, to meet business strategic visions, aligning technology strategy. He manage complex business project to various business domains as recently the conception for the solution to deliver Deutsche Post Parcels in Greece.

From 1994 up to 2000 he was Network and Infrastructure manager and Country Change manager. From 2004 up to 2006 he was Area CIO Director for MEDNA Area (MEDiterranean, North Africa) managing the countries: Greece, Turkey, Malta, Cyprus and countries of North Africa up the date where this area has been reshaped.

He is graduate with the diploma of Computer system engineer from the “Ecole Superieure d’ Informatique” de Paris (France) and he has realized his Doctorate to the theme of Data Base Distributed to the same Polytechnic school.

He is graduated from the HARVARD University at the specialization of “Managing and Shaping Change in the information age” and graduated from the VIACTION at the specialization of “Developing Business Leadership”.

He is member of the official advisors for new broadband technologies of the Greek Institute of Local Governmental authorities (ITA) of the Ministry of interior affairs.

He is member of the EEDE (Hellenique Management Organization), member of IEEE (Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers #40221035), member of Hellenic Society of Information Technology and of Technical engineering Committee of Greece and member of Engineering Management and Communication society as well.

He is certified Project Manager (P2/06411) from the APM (Association of Project Manager) of CCTA (Central Computer and Telecommunication Agency).

He has been invited as specialized speaker to various international forums and congress, presenting and analyzing the new way of Leadership, IT Governance, how business and IT Networks are converging to transportation systems (airline, maritime and road as well).

He was Managing Director of Broker Systems SA a Greek software house from 2000 to 2002.

He has strongly involved to the conception of the new IT Governance model adapted by DHL Express of EEMEA Region to all sectors (Aviation, Transportation, and Logistics). As network and infrastructure manager of DHL he has design an alternate Radio Dispatch Application solution for DHL, which is an innovative hand held solution using the GSM data transfer. He was member of NETSIG (Network Interest Group) writing network and protocol standards for DHL Europe and Africa.

He has participated as Information Technology and Telecommunication responsible for various public domain projects for the Greek Government (Greek Aviation development, urban planning etc)

He has been consultant for the project management of the Mediterranean Integrated Programme for Greece supported by European Union (643 project and initiatives)

He has been IT manager for various companies in Greece (Development Company of Northern Greece, Theorema SA, BCD SA (Balkan Company for Development) and he has been scientific consultant of ALTEC SA.

At Paris he has worked as software engineer to the Agence Francaise du Transport, Institute de Recherche du Transport , and to Dassault Aviation.

As Academic activity he has been assistant professor to “Universite de Caen”, to the “Institute Technologique de Grenoble” to the domain of Software Systems, Networks, Data Base system analysis.

All activities of Dr. Tassos Vassilopoulos are included to the International Who’s Who of Professionals.