

Antennas

Antennas are necessary to ensure an adequate service level for mobile phone users everywhere, in order for them to communicate and access the Internet at high speeds. The installation and operation of antennas is subject to a strict legal framework in Greece to ensure public protection against electromagnetic emissions. EETT has developed a special Information Portal for Antenna Constructions, keraies.eett.gr, through which you can find information about any licensed antenna construction you might be interested in.
