

Wireless devices

Wireless devices are technological devices such as mobile phones and devices for wireless access to the Internet. In the European Union, these devices must meet specified requirements, in particular relating to the health and safety of the public and the avoidance of harmful interference. EETT is the competent authority for the surveillance of the radio equipment market.

Εικονίδιο

Σελίδας

