

Fixed service

The fixed service relates to communication between two or more radio communication stations located at a fixed position.

For the implementation of fixed service wireless networks, you can use the radio frequency bands provided for in the Regulation on radio spectrum conditions of use.

To grant an individual right to use radio frequencies (license) for a specific radio frequency band, follow the procedure described in the Regulation on the use and granting of rights to use individual radio frequencies or radio frequency bands under the general authorization system for the provision of networks and/or electronic communications services.

Applications

In the following cases, for your convenience, it is recommended to complete the online application:

- Granting new rights of use.
- Modification of an existing right.
- Revocation of an existing right.
- Modification of information (e.g. contact) of the right holder.

Before submitting an application, please read the following instructions for completion carefully to avoid any omissions that may delay the handing process.

- Instructions for completing the application for the granting of rights to use the fixed service radio spectrum
- Application for the granting of rights to use fixed service radio frequencies

■

Calculation of radio frequency concession/usage fees